1	Olbia – Cala di Volpe – Porto Cervo
2	Porto Cervo – Cala Spalmatore – La Maddalena
3	La Maddalena – Santa Maria – Santa Teresa di Gallura
4	Santa Teresa di Gallura – Lavezzi – Palau
5	Palau – Cala Corsara – Poltu Quatu
6	Poltu Quatu – Golfo della Marinella - Olbia

The Northern Sardinia sailing route includes locations in the Arcipelago della Maddalena and is suitable for both small and big yachts. Distance covered each day is about 16 NM.

Day 1: Olbia – Cala di Volpe – Porto Cervo

North from Olbia you will find a famous sailing resort, Cala di Volpe. It is well sheltered from the wind and includes a long beach you can enjoy. The next stop is Porto Cervo, a very popular luxury tourist and sailing resort. There you will find a charming village and a modern marina full of tourist attractions: nightlife, regattas, shopping and gastronomy places. Both of these locations can be very crowded, so be sure to check the availability of boat places!

Day 2: Porto Cervo – Cala Spalmatore – La Maddalena

Sailing north, you will get to Cala Spalmatore, one of the many bays of La Maddalena. From there, you can reach the Cala Gavetta harbour and go on exploring the village and the land (the main attraction being the house of Garibaldi).

Day 3: La Maddalena – Santa Maria – Santa Teresa di Gallura

Between La Maddalena and Spargi is situated Santa Maria, a bay with crystal sea and great anchoring spots. There you can enjoy swimming and exploring the interesting build of the bay (especially the reef in its middle!). The next stop is Santa Teresa di Gallura, a well sheltered bay with a harbour and a marina, famous for corals. From there, make sure you enjoy a magnificent view on the Bonifacio sound.

Day 4: Santa Teresa di Gallura – Lavezzi – Palau

Lavezzi Island is located only 6 miles away from Santa Teresa di Gallura. The island is inhabited, but includes a bay (Cala Lazarina) and pretty beaches where you can immerse yourself in the beautiful nature. There is only one trace of human life there, and that is the cemetery in honour of the sunken French frigate Semillante. Two hours of sailing from there, you will get to your next destination, Palau.

Day 5: Palau – Cala Corsara – Poltu Quatu

During your stay in Palau, you can also visit a nearby island, the Island of Spargi, and its astonishing, well-sheltered, granite-rock bay, Cala Corsara. Once there, you should take some time to relax and enjoy clear sea and white sand. Then you can continue your journey towards Poltu Quatu.

Day 6: Poltu Quatu – Golfo della Marinella – Olbia

After Poltu Quatu, your next destination is the Golfo della Marinella, which you will reach by passing through Porto Cervo and the Gulf of Congianus. Enjoy the last bits of your Sardinia adventure in a perfect climate and tropical white sand beach. Continue sailing to your final destination, Olbia.
